Columbian commandery, No. 4, K. T., measured up to its reputation for excellence Wednesday night when it celebrated its fifth-seventh anniversary by giving a reception and bail to the right eminent grand commander, Eugene A. Hall, of Meriden, and associate officers of the grand commander, Knights. Templar, of Connecticut, at the armory. Never before has it attempted any such elaborate affair as that of last evening, but that did not detract from its success, and it will linger in the minds of those present as one of the finest affairs of its kind the city ever saw.

Pleasing Concert.

From 8 to 9 o'clock a fine concert was given by the First Infantry band of Hartford, C. P. Hatch conductor. The Valse di Concert, H. T. M., written by A. W. Jarvis and played for the first time in public, proved a melodious production and was well received. The band selections were all finely played, the band being located in the elevated stand at the west end of the ball, The band and Miller's orchestra alternated in playing for the dancing, there being cleanor, returned to Stafford Springs Wednesday, after spending several fifteen numbers on the programme, while a number of selections by the band were interspersed. Magnificent Decorations.

As a setting for the brilliant scene made by the hundreds of sir knights and their richly appareled ladles, it was unanimously agreed that the decorative scheme in the armory could hardly have been conceived in better taste or carried out more effectively, producing a rarely harmonious effect soft and exquisitely pleasing to the eye. The general color scheme was in white and a delicate shade of bine,
